9th edition

The Messina Opera Film Festival represents a unique event in the international cultural landscape, dedicated to exploring the deep connection between cinema and opera. The festival stands out for its ability narrate the past through historical films while maintaining a keen eye on the present and future prospects. In this context, the themed short film competition offers a unique opportunity to explore how opera continues to inspire and fuel the creativity of contemporary filmmakers. Each year, the festival pays tribute to great opera composers, with homages to Vincenzo Bellini in 2023 and Gioachino Rossini in 2024, while this year is dedicated to Giuseppe Verdi. Among the special initiatives, silent film screenings inspired by operas are organized, accompanied by live musical performances that enrich the visual experience. Additionally, the festival provides insights into directors and works that have found their expression in the cinematic language, without overlooking a selection of contemporary rarities and curiosities that further enhance the program. The Messina Opera Film Festival thus represents a celebration of the rich Italian tradition of melodrama and its lasting impact on the history of cinema, making it an unmissable occasion for all music and film enthusiasts.
